COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF ENVIRONMENTAL AFFAIRS
DEPARTMENT OF FOOD AND AGRICULTURE
100 CAMBRIDGE STREET, BOSTON, MA 02202 617-727-3000

June 15, 1997

Greetings:

On behalf of the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, it is my pleasure to welcome you to the over 150 Massachusetts farms listed in this directory. With recreational and educational activities ranging from farm tours to hay rides, petting zoos to pick-your-own fruits and vegetables, these farms offer a variety of "down on the farm" adventures for all ages.

Agri-tourism is a growing trend in agriculture which merges the world of travel with the experiences of farming and the food system. Whether you learn how to milk a cow or how to turn that milk into blue cheese, agri-tourism offers you an enjoyable, insider's view of agriculture.

During your visit, support your local farm by purchasing seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables from their farmstand. Many farmstands also offer a wide variety of baked goods and craft items. Your purchases help insure that local farms will be in business for many years to come. Massachusetts farms keep local food supplies strong while helping to preserve the scenic beauty of open space.

I hope this guide leads you to many fun farming adventures. Enjoy them in good health.

Sincerely,

Jonathan L. Healy
Commissioner
